Why Drilling Bit Buyers in Jordan Struggle with Pricing (And How to Fix It)

Are you drilling contractors or mining companies in Jordan tired of unpredictable wholesale prices for drilling bits? You're not alone. The Jordanian construction sector grew by 4.2% in 2023 (Central Bank of Jordan), pushing demand for durable drilling tools. But most buyers face three problems:

Unstable import costs due to global steel price fluctuations

Limited local supplier competition

Hidden logistics fees inflating final price per piece

A Real Case: How Amman Contractor Saved 18% on Drilling Bits

Al-Hussein Construction, an Amman-based firm, spent 32% of their 2022 budget on drill bits. After comparing quotes from Chinese suppliers (like SINOCSM Group) and Turkish manufacturers, they switched to bulk purchases via Jordanian wholesalers with pre-negotiated customs clearance. Result? Their ROI per well project improved by 3 weeks.
