Current Drilling Rod 6inch Price List (2024)

The average price per piece for a standard Drilling Rod 6inch ranges from $50-$150, but these 4 factors dramatically change your final cost:

Material quality: High-carbon steel rods cost 35% more than basic models but last 2x longer in harsh conditions.

Certifications: API-certified suppliers (common in the USA/Germany) charge 15-20% premiums.

Order volume: Bulk orders of 100+ units from Chinese manufacturers drop prices to $40-$90/piece.

Tariffs: EU's 2024 anti-dumping duties added 12% fees on select Asian imports.

Case Study: Mining Company Saves $18K with Strategic Sourcing

A Texas-based drilling firm needed 200 rods monthly. Initial quotations from local vendors hit $135/piece ($27,000/month). After comparing 8 global suppliers, they partnered with a Guangdong manufacturer offering $90/piece for pre-tested rods - saving $9,000 monthly without sacrificing durability.

How to Buy Drilling Rod 6inch: 2024 Wholesale Tips

Follow this PAS formula to avoid overspending:

Problem:

Low-quality rods crack under 300 PSI pressure, causing project delays. Cheap imports often lack hardness testing.

Agitate:

Replacing failed rods mid-project increases costs by 40% (MiningTech Journal). Delays from defective tools cost Australian firms $2.7B annually.

Solve:

Request price lists with lab test reports (e.g., Rockwell hardness ≥ 58 HRC).

Compare FOB vs. CIF costs - air freight adds $5-$8/piece for urgent orders.

Negotiate 5-10% discounts for upfront payments with suppliers like Henglong Machinery or Sandvik.
