

Second Hand Core Drilling Rig for Sale in Netherlands: 2024 Price List, Quotation & ROI Buying Guide

Second Hand Core Drilling Rig for Sale in Netherlands: 2024 Price List, Quotation & ROI Buying Guide

Need a second hand core drilling rig in the Netherlands but unsure about prices? You're not alone. Over 35% of Dutch construction companies now opt for used equipment to cut costs amid rising inflation. This guide reveals price per piece ranges, trusted suppliers, and how to get instant quotations.

Why Dutch Buyers Choose Used Core Drilling Rigs

New rigs in Europe cost EUR18,000-EUR50,000. A second hand core drilling rig in the Netherlands typically sells for 40-60% less - around EUR7,000-EUR30,000. Rotterdam-based contractor Visser Group saved EUR24,500 last year by buying two refurbished Hilti DD 150 units through certified dealers.

2024 Price Trends in Netherlands vs. EU Markets

- o Average EUR9,800-EUR27,300 for used rigs in Amsterdam/Rotterdam
- o German prices 15% higher due to export fees
- o Chinese imports 25% cheaper but lack EU compliance

Recent carbon tax policies now add EUR300-EUR900 to transport costs for non-EU purchases.

3-Step Buying Guide for Maximum ROI

Problem: How to avoid overpaying for used equipment.

Agitate: A flooded market risks scams or warranty-free purchases.

Solve:

Compare price lists from certified dealers like DrillMastersNL or Pan-European Machinery Exchange

Request VAT-inclusive quotations with service history reports

Verify CE marking - crucial for insurance claims in Benelux countries

Case Study: 35% Cost Reduction in Utrecht

InfraBuild Utrecht purchased a 2019-era Atlas Copco CS14 for EUR14,200 (new: EUR39,500) through a government-backed circular economy program. The rig handled 6 months of roadwork without downtime.

Pro tip: Companies near major ports like Rotterdam often offer better pricing. Check if suppliers include diamond drill bits - this bonus saves EUR200-EUR800 per toolset. Always negotiate using multiple quotations as leverage. The right used core drilling rig purchase could slash your equipment costs by 40%, but only if you follow this buying blueprint.
