Second Hand Drilling Bits for Sale in Taiwan: Price List 2024, Quotes & Supplier Deals

Second hand drilling bits in Taiwan are 25-60% cheaper than new ones, but 8/10 buyers report confusion about cost and quality. Here's how to get trusted suppliers and avoid hidden risks.

Why Taiwan's Market for Used Drilling Bits Is Booming

Problem: Rising Costs vs. Tight Project Budgets

A construction firm in Taipei needed 120 drilling bits last year but faced a $38,000 budget gap with new tools. The solution? Switching to pre-owned bits from a Taichung supplier slashed their price per piece by 53%.

Agitate: Over 65% Buyers Get Stuck Here

Taiwan's second hand drilling bit market grew 15% in 2023, yet many still:

- Pay 20-30% extra due to poor wear analysis

- Wait weeks for unclear quotations

- Face legal issues from untested imports (like 2023's confiscated China-sourced batch)

Solved: Your 2024 Buying Guide

Price Trends in Taiwan vs. Global Markets

Taiwan's average price for used 12" rock bits is $80-120, while Germany sells similar-grade tools at $150-200. But watch out:

- China-sourced bits are 30% cheaper but have 43% higher defect rates (Taiwan Customs 2023 data)

- Local suppliers like MaxTechDrill offer ROI calculators and 72-hour delivery

5 Questions to Ask Suppliers

"When I bought 80 used bits last month," says Kaohsiung-based contractor Chen Wei, "I demanded:

- Third-party hardness test reports

- Clear breakdown of wholesale discounts for 50+ units

- Warranty against cracks in first 30 days"

Where to Find Reliable Deals Now

Major Taiwan suppliers like GongBang Industrial list drilling bit prices online with real-time stock updates. For limited 2024 offers:

*Pro Tip:* Request a quotation mentioning "Taiwan Energy Bureau subsidies" - some vendors discount 5-7%
