Second Hand Drilling Bits in Jordan 2025: Price List, Quotation & Supplier Deals

Why Jordan's Construction Sector Needs Affordable Second Hand Drilling Bits

Jordan's infrastructure boom demands 8% more drilling equipment annually (Amman Chamber of Commerce, 2024). But new bits cost $800-$2,500 per piece - enough to stall small contractors. Second hand drilling bits now fill this gap, priced 30-60% lower while matching performance.

The Real Price per Piece Shock

Last month, a Ma'an-based contractor paid $13,000 for 5 new 12-inch tricone bits. Just 3 months later, UAE-sourced refurbished bits delivered the same results at $5,200. That's a 60% ROI boost. But why aren't more buyers jumping in?

2025 Price List & What Dictates Costs

Size matters: 8-inch used bits start at $150, 16-inch up to $1,100

Brand tier: Chinese-made bits cost 20% less than Sandvik or Atlas Copco equivalents

Supplier location: Turkish wholesalers offer 12% lower price per piece vs Jordanian stockists

Case Study: Al-Madina Drilling's 47% Cost Cut

This Irbid-based team slashed expenses by sourcing 10 refurbished 9-inch bits from Egyptian vendor DrillPro at $420/unit. New bits would've cost $780 each. Transport via Aqaba Port added just $15/bit under Jordan's new green logistics incentives.

How to Get Accurate Quotations (Without Scams)

Dealers like HeavyMach Jordan now provide free bit condition reports - including teeth wear scans and pressure test videos. Look for ISO 9001-certified refurbishers. Pro tip: Ask for a "performance warranty" of 150 drilling hours. Reputable China-based suppliers like SINOCOR offer this.
