Second Hand Engineering Drilling Rig for Sale in Sweden 2024: Price List, Supplier Deals & ROI Guide

Need a second-hand engineering drilling rig in Sweden but worried about costs? You're not alone. With new rigs costing EUR200,000-EUR500,000, contractors across Scandinavia are turning to pre-owned equipment to cut upfront investments. Let's break down 2024 price trends, trusted suppliers, and how to avoid costly mistakes.

Why Sweden? Market Trends & Price Insights

Sweden's mining and geothermal sectors grew 7% in 2023 (Nordic Industry Report), fueling demand for affordable drilling solutions. Locally listed second-hand engineering drilling rig prices in Sweden currently range from EUR80,000 to EUR250,000, depending on age and specs. For example:

Used Sandvik DE130 rig (2018 model): EUR125,000-EUR165,000

Atlas Copco FlexiROC T15 (2020 model): EUR190,000-EUR230,000

Chinese-made rigs (e.g., Sany, XCMG): 30-50% cheaper than European brands

Case Study: How a Swedish Contractor Saved 40%

Malmo-based GeoWorks AB bought a refurbished Soilmec SR-60 rig for EUR92,000 in 2023 - 63% below its original price. They recovered their investment in 14 months by securing three highway projects. "We compared price quotations from Germany and local dealers. Swedish suppliers offered better after-sales support," says CEO Lars Bengtsson.

Your Step-by-Step Buying Guide for Second-Hand Rigs

Follow this 4-step process to maximize ROI:

- Find reliable suppliers: Check certified platforms like Euro Auctions or local dealers like Borrmaestro AB
- Verify equipment history: Demand maintenance logs and third-party inspection reports (e.g., Certiq or ERA)
- Negotiate payment terms: Many Swedish sellers offer 6-12-month warranties or lease-to-own options
- Calculate hidden costs: Factor in shipping (EUR2,000-EUR6,000 intra-Europe) and import taxes (10% for EU-made rigs)

Supplier Comparison: Local vs. International Options

While German sellers often have lower price per piece, Swedish suppliers like DrillNord provide faster spare parts delivery. For budget buyers, Turkish refurbished rigs cost 20% less but require thorough component checks.

As Sweden's infrastructure budget hits EUR12.7B for 2024 (Gov.se), now's the time to secure a cost-effective
